ABOUT

I am a visual artist and urban designer based in Amsterdam. My interest is to describe and research a sense of humanity in the city. I believe that cities are the mirror of our society and working on the future by designing them means a great responsibility. My passion for images guides me to work in the field of visual arts at service to urban design. Imagination is the main tool and methodology for my work. The aim is to describe, imagine and modify the fundamental human environment: The City.
